To whom it may concern,

I write with regards to Justina Huang. I have had the pleasure of welcoming Justina into my busy Parliamentary office to become a part of my team at a particularly busy time in the United Kingdom political cycle.

During this time, she has quickly adapted to the rapidly evolving nature of Westminster. Justina is hard-working, incredibly pro-active and enthusiastic.

Her primary role saw her conducting intense levels of research into a diverse range of subject relating to both my role as constituency Member of Parliament and impact of the Government on my constituency. Justina's research is of an exceptional standard; thorough and concise -- crucial for my busy schedule, equipping me with exactly the right information needed.

Additionally she has contributed a wide range of refreshing and constructive ideas to debates within the office and has shown a passion for engaging with new and challenging area outside of her usual fields of interest.

Justina is both articulate and professional, for which we have had very positive feedback from colleagues and external organisation.

I would not hesitate to employ Justina in a full-time position and it has been a pleasure to have her support my work.

Kind regards,

Justin
